Q) My Thatcham Research certified security device is faulty, are you able to help?

- Thatcham Research certify security products to specific criteria and do not manufacture or supply security products. You will need to establish who the manufacturer of the product is and contact them directly. If the manufacturer is not known, you will need to contact a local installer of security products who may be able to identify the product or offer a replacement.

Q) I have an issue regarding the installation of my security product, are you able to help?

- The manufacturer of the security product is responsible for providing a professional installation programme for its product network. If you consider that such an installation has been carried out incorrectly or is of poor quality, please contact the manufacturer directly.

Q) Is my vehicle vulnerable to keyless relay attack?

- Please refer to Thatcham Research's security ratings for information on vehicle makes/models tested for security ratings, along with our advice to reduce the risk of theft.

Q) Is there an insurance discount for having a Thatcham Research certified product fitted?

- Any insurance discounts would be at the discretion of your chosen insurer. For further enquiries, please contact your insurer directly.

Q) I have a Thatcham Research certified tracking device fitted to my vehicle, do I need to maintain the subscription?

- If you have a Thatcham Research certified tracking or location device installed at the request of your insurer, it is highly likely that the subscription must be maintained to provide 24/7 cover. For further details please contact your insurer directly for their terms and conditions for maintaining cover.

Q) Is this tracking product Thatcham Research category S5 or S7 certified?

- Please refer to the Thatcham Research security certification page on our website where you can search for relevant categories and see the various aftermarket security products.
- Please also refer to the relevant vehicle manufactures website or contact your local dealer for more information.
